

Obiectul direct vs. Obiectul secundar

Anda-Olivia Cristolovean
Universitatea Transilvania din Braşov

Abstract: The purpose of the present research paper, entitled Direct Object vs. Secondary Object, is to offer an extensive description of two syntactic positions that have not a very clear status in traditional Romanian grammars. It was the modern perspective/grammar (GALR 2005/2008, GBLR 2010) that advocated for the interpretation of these syntactic constituents as occupying two different syntactic positions in a sentence, depending on the context, and this is also the point of view presented in this paper. As concerns the methodological aspects, we use the corpus analysis (both quantitative, and qualitative), and the syntactic concepts of Modern Grammar. The corpus comprises Old Romanian texts dated back to the 16th and the 17th centuries, both original and translated texts, since we wish for our results to be consistent, and also to bring evidence about specific linguistic features of Romanian. We support our research on a rich bibliography, collecting works that belong to Syntax, as well as to Historical Linguistics.

Key words: Direct Object, Secondary Object, Modern Grammar, Traditional Romanian grammars, two different syntactic positions.

Referințe:

- DSL – Bidu-Vrânceanu, A., Călărășu, C., Ionescu Ruxăndoiu, L., Mancaș, M., Pană Dindelegan, G. (2005). Dicționar de științe ale limbii. București: Editura Nemira.
- GALR – Guțu Romalo, V. (coord.) (2005/2008). Gramatica limbii române. București: Editura Academiei Române.
- GBLR – Pană Dindelegan, G. (coord.) (2010/2016). Gramatica de bază a limbii române. București: Editura Univers Enciclopedic Gold.
- Gheorghe, M. (2009). Limba română probleme teoretice și aplicații (O introducere în sintaxa modernă a complementelor). Braşov: Editura Universității Transilvania din Braşov.
- Pană Dindelegan, G. (1994). Teorie și analiză gramaticală. București: Editura Coresi.
- Stan, C. (2014). O sintaxă diacronică a limbii române vechi. București: Editura Universității București.

How to cite this article: Cristolovean, A. O. (2017). Obiectul direct vs. Obiectul secundar. Buletinul sesiunii studenților și masteranzilor filologi - Bssmf, 2, 30-44. DOI: <https://doi.org/10.29302/bssmf.2017.3>